On March 21, trees and plants are planted as a way to commemorate World Planting Day. Every year, it is observed as a day to encourage more people to participate in planting. World Planting Day encourages people to plant as many trees and other plants as they can to counteract climate change and global warming. One of the key greenhouse gases that causes global warming is carbon dioxide. Because florals assist in absorbing carbon dioxide from the atmosphere, trees and other plants are crucial for maintaining a healthy environment. There are numerous methods for one to participate. One can either grow their own plants and trees in their garden, institutions or take part in community sponsored awareness and tree planting activities. The Club Botanica along with Department of Botany has organized painting competitions and tree plantation in the college campus. The programme was attended by the students, faculty members, gardeners (Mr. Bindu and Mr. Donald). The chief guest for the program was Mr. Biplob Ghosh.
