DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH

ABOUT US

The Department of English at St. Edmund's College is among the oldest Departments in the college. Eminent scholars and thinkers over the years have made seminal contributions to molding and promoting the Department's objectives of language teaching and the teaching of literary appreciation and research.

Besides being the largest department in the Stream of Arts, it is also responsible for imparting instruction to various Streams such as Commerce, Science, Social Work, and Environmental Science where English is a compulsory subject.

Apart from the Honours course, the Department also offers programmes such as Alternative English and Elective English at the different levels of the Under-Graduate Programme.

TEACHING & RESOURCES

The Faculty of the Department is well qualified and successfully handles close to about 3000 students.

The Department offers a lively and diverse range of lectures, seminars, presentations and discussion groups to enhance the skills of the learners.

Apart from classroom lectures, the Department actively employs various methods to make literature come alive to the students.

Library provision for English at St. Edmund's is exceptionally good which is regularly updated with the newest titles.

WHAT WE'RE LOOKING FOR?

English students need an intellectual curiosity which drives them to try new things and ask probing questions.

To this end, we look for reading beyond the syllabus, and for independent, well-informed critical thinking.

Hence, students need to possess a passion for reading literature, the ability to respond to new ideas and concepts as well as the capacity for independent thought.
